For Safety Purposes

- ▲ Students will not be permitted to wait outside the building for their rides.
- ▲ Students should arrive in time to dress for class and be picked up within 10 minutes after class ends. There is not always an adult in the office and we cannot be responsible for unattended children.
- ▲ No one, including students, will be allowed in dance studios without staff supervision or permission. There is a tremendous amount of stereo equipment and glass mirrors. Damage has occurred.
- ▲ Students will be expected to refrain from talking in excess, hanging or leaning on barres and touching the mirrors or stereo equipment in the classroom.
- ▲ All students must wear cover-ups outside the studio, and must obey and use all traffic signals and crosswalks when going to 7-11.

There are reasons why We Do Not Have Viewing Windows For Our Classrooms.

The issue of viewing windows most often comes up for very young dancers.

There are good reasons not to have viewing windows into class rooms.

- 1) The child's attention and focus is split between the teacher and the parent when viewing windows are present. A dance class is an educational experience and part of that education is learning new relationships with teachers. The first day of class the door is intentionally left open for the little ones to adjust but not to become dependent on Mom being right there all the time.
- 2) Parents usually do not have any corrections that can come from observation. Usually parents fall into two general categories. One – The parent tells the child they are doing really great. Children often take this as "I've done it, I don't need to work so hard." Two – a small number of parents will compare their child's rate of learning to other children. No child should ever be required to explain who they are. Children learn at their own pace. They often have different issues they deal with. The classroom should be a totally safe place for the child to be who they are and to learn as they are. It is our responsibility to keep the child's attention.
- 3) Do classrooms at elementary schools have observation windows?
- 4) We are a loving organization and are focused on creating a superior and loving learning environment for your child.

We have designated class days when parents are welcome into the classroom for viewing.
